Allied Members Code of Ethics

HMA is grateful for the backing of all of its Allied Members, which provide positive support for our Active Members and their practices. HMA Active Members recognize that Allied Members can offer them various services to assist, enrich, and enhance the profitability of their practice and the services that each practice offers its patients and the community.

The relationship between Active Members and Allied Members should be respectful and mutually beneficial. HMA expects all Allied Members to conduct themselves in a professional manner. One of the benefits of the meetings of HMA is the opportunity to get to know other members in a stress-free environment. It is not a time for pressure or for "selling." There is to be no direct solicitation or marketing to the active members via email, postal mail or telephone unless the member has given consent to do so.

The Governing Board of HMA reserves the right to deny, suspend, and/or terminate the membership of any Allied Member for conduct the Board believes, in its sole discretion, is not conducive to the organization or its membership.

As an Allied Member, I agree to abide by this Code of Ethics.
